INTRODUCTION

In more ways than one 1976 may be regarded as a milestone for the publication of the annual reports of the Administrative Office of the Courts. 1976 marks the beginning of the second decade for annual reports on the Judicial Department, pursuant to the Judicial Department Act of 1965 which established the Administrative Office of the Courts. This year also marks a significant revision in format and content of the annual report.

In format, the report is now in regular page size which better accommodates the series of tables and text. As to content, data is being published this year — for the first time — on ages of cases pending in the trial courts as of the end of the year. This new data is possible because of a revised data reporting system implemented in 1976, and for the first time we have data which tells us something about “case backlog”. The subject of case backlog is dealt with in the text of the report, in the sections on the superior court and district court divisions.

Under the revised system of reporting, each case which is filed in a trial court is reported by its individual case number, along with date of filing and other identifying information, to the Administrative Office of the Courts. Each case which is disposed of is similarly reported, with individual case number, date of disposition and other identifying information. This information is entered on reporting forms daily in the clerks' offices, and these forms are accumulated and mailed each week to AOC. Upon receipt in AOC, the forms are checked for completeness and the data is keyed to magnetic computer tape. The AOC purchases computer time from the State Department of Administration's Computer Center, to process the data and to produce reports. In substance, the system enables AOC to maintain a perpetual pending case inventory on computer file. A weekly total of approximately 55,000 case filings and case dispositions are thus reported to the Administrative Office of the Courts.

It has been recognized for sometime that the old system of reporting numbers of cases filed and numbers of cases disposed of permitted errors to build up in the pending case figures which were carried forward from year to year. It was not possible at state level to check case statistics by individual case number against the individual case records in the clerks' offices. Following the implementation of the revised case data reporting system and the taking of special case inventories in the clerks' offices, verification was obtained on the number of cases pending as of December 31, 1975 as well as the number of cases filed and disposed of during 1976, and the number pending as of December 31, 1976. It was concluded that pending case figures reported previously for December 31, 1975 were overstated. Instead of a total of 296,304, the pending case total was 249,939. Therefore, the corrected pending case figures, as of January 1, 1976, are shown in the tables contained in the 1976 Annual Report.

Appreciation is expressed to the clerks of superior court across the State for their splendid cooperation in implementing the improved system of case data reporting. They and their staffs were called on to assume extra burdens of work, without additional personnel, simply to get the new reporting system in operation.

To place the present system of data reporting in correct perspective, it is important to emphasize that it falls far short of being a full-fledged, up-to-date “computer system” which is sorely needed for North Carolina's court system. What we now have is still a manual data reporting system. All of the data which the Administrative Office of the Courts obtains from the 100 clerks' offices must be entered on paper in the clerks' offices, and that paper — a great volume — transmitted weekly to Raleigh by mail from each of the 100 counties.

With the assistance of some LEAA grant funding, the Administrative Office of the Courts is now engaged in an effort to develop a full-fledged information system for the courts, utilizing electronic data processing. To implement a complete electronic data information system — one which will permit data to be entered directly into a computer system from the clerks' offices and which will provide local direct access to computer-stored data — will require state appropriated funds, especially for the maintenance and operation of such a system once it is designed and implemented on a pilot basis.

Such a system is needed not only to provide adequate information to assess the operation of the courts from a statewide perspective, important as that is, but to provide day-to-day operational assistance in each county, for the clerks of court, for district attorneys, for judges, and for all other personnel in the judicial system.

The already vast volume of records which must be maintained in the court system will inexorably increase year after year. The courts will experience greater inefficiencies in the years ahead if electronic data processing is not made available to the court system. Such inefficiencies will create barriers to the proper administration of justice for each individual who is a participant in a court proceeding. Thus, the hope is expressed that future sessions of the General Assembly will recognize the problem that is growing larger with each passing year and will be persuaded to deal with this problem by providing the necessary state funding for a complete electronic data processing system for the courts of North Carolina.

Section 7A-343 of the North Carolina General Statutes provides that the Administrative Officer of the Courts shall "prepare and submit an annual report on the work of the Judicial Department to the Chief Justice, and transmit a copy to each member of the General Assembly; . . ." The statute does not specify the scope or describe the content of the required annual report. Nevertheless, the statutory language may be interpreted as requiring, at the minimum, information on the significant work of the Judicial Department, leaving to the Administrative Officer, subject to any policy direction of the Chief Justice, the determination of precisely what format and content the annual report should have. Considering the statutory language as well as what would seem to be practical and desirable in the way of an annual report, the following appear to be the principal purposes which the annual report ought to serve:

- (1) Provide information and data on the significant work of the Judicial Department, as a matter of minimum compliance with G.S. 7A-343.
- (2) Provide information and data useful for short-range administrative or policy decisions concerning the Judicial Department.
- (3) Provide information and data useful for long-range planning for the Judicial Department.
- (4) Preserve in appropriate context and focus information and data useful for historical study and assessment.

Format as well as content of the annual report will determine whether, and how well, the above-stated purposes will be achieved. Equally obvious, these purposes must be achieved with due regard to the factor of production and printing costs.

Apart from case data, this year's Report contains some new sections of comment and information. Some — for example, the historical note and the statement on present court system organization — will not necessarily be repeated in each subsequent annual report. What is sought to be achieved is to present relevant data and comment on this year's activity, placed in focus and context for assessment and understanding.

It is hoped that the changes in format and content which are reflected in this year's report will, for those who have occasion to use the report, communicate in understandable fashion that which is relevant to know or to have convenient access to at some future date.

The Appellate Division

“The Appellate Division of the General Court of Justice shall consist of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals.”

THE SUPREME COURT

One hundred and thirty-nine opinions were filed by the Supreme Court in 1976. Of the total, 57 were civil and 82 were criminal cases. Forty-three percent (23 opinions) of the civil appeals were affirmed and 68 percent (55 opinions) of the criminal appeals were affirmed. In the remaining cases, the Supreme Court modified or reversed the decisions from which the appeals were taken. Of the total number of appeals, 47 were decisions in which the Supreme Court granted a discretionary review, the remaining 92 were appeals as of right. As reported in the North Carolina Reports, the court disposed of 294 petitions for certiorari, 10 motions to dismiss, and one motion to rehear.

NORTH CAROLINA JUDICIAL DIVISIONS AND DISTRICTS

The State is divided into four judicial divisions and thirty judicial districts. Regular superior court judges rotate from district to district of the division in which they reside. District court judges rotate from county to county in the district in which they reside.

The Superior Court Division

“The General Assembly shall, from time to time, divide the State into a convenient number of Superior Court judicial districts and shall provide for the election of one or more Superior Court Judges for each district.”

THE SUPERIOR COURT DIVISION

Total case activity in the superior courts during 1976, compared with total case activity during the preceding four years, is depicted in the graphs which follow. There was a slight decrease in total filings — 63,321 in 1976 as compared with 64,424 in 1975. There was also a decrease in the total number of dispositions, 58,789 in 1976 as compared with 61,773 in 1975. The number of cases pending at the end of 1976 was 33,083 as compared with 28,551 at the end of 1975, an increase of 14.7%.

1975	11,525	9,143	79.3
1976	11,268	8,897 ½	78.9

The total number of days of superior court scheduled in 1976 was 11,268, compared with 11,525 in 1975. There was also some decrease in the total number of days of court held, 8,897 ½ in 1976 as compared with 9,143 days held in 1975. For all 100 counties, the percentage of scheduled days of court held in 1976 was 78.9% compared with 79.3% in 1975.

SUPERIOR COURT CIVIL DOCKET

Civil case activity in the superior courts during 1976 is compared with civil case activity during the preceding four years in the graphs which follow. There was a small decrease in civil case filings — 10,774 in 1976 as compared with 10,919 in 1975. There was a slight increase in the number of civil case dispositions — 9,391 in 1976 as compared with 9,222 in 1975. The number of civil cases pending at the end of 1976 was 14,652 as compared with 13,269 pending at the end of 1975, an increase of 10.4%

Tables are presented which show the distribution of pending civil cases among the counties; the ten counties with the largest number of civil cases pending at the end of 1976; the ten counties with the highest and the ten with the lowest ratios of dispositions of civil cases to total civil caseloads; and the ratios of dispositions of civil cases to total civil caseloads; and the ratios of dispositions of estates and of special proceedings to total caseloads in these categories.

Data is then shown, by judicial districts and by counties, on: (1) civil cases pending, filed and disposed of in 1976; (2) ages of civil cases pending as of December 31, 1976; (3) utilization of civil superior court terms; (4) estates cases before the clerks of superior court — pending, filed and disposed of in 1976; (5) ages of estates cases pending as of December 31, 1976; (6) special proceedings before the clerks of superior court — pending, filed and disposed of in 1976; and (7) ages of special proceedings pending as of December 31, 1976. Special proceedings before the clerks of superior court include such matters as foreclosures, involuntary commitments to mental hospitals, adoptions, condemnations of real property under eminent domain, and hearings on incompetency.

If neither of the parties involved in a civil case is interested in having the case put on the trial calendar, it will not likely be calendared. This may explain why there are more than 100 civil cases which have been pending in the superior courts for more than 10 years, and why four are shown to have been pending for more than 20 years. Special proceedings and estates matters before the clerks are also "civil" matters, and the parties involved may not always be interested in bringing them to a conclusion. Further, in many of these types of cases, the nature of the case may dictate that it will be before the court for many years. This is especially true in estates matters where several are shown to have been pending for more than 20 years. An estate case filed on behalf of a minor may properly have to remain open for the life of that individual.

From the standpoint of an efficiently functioning court system, it can be said that there is always an underlying public interest in assuring that cases of all types are disposed of promptly, consistent with the nature of the case and the rights of the parties involved. In civil matters, it is obvious that the court system (and thus the public interest) is not well served by having any such matter carried as an open, pending case for several years simply because the parties in such a case permit or tolerate this to occur because of disinterest or inattention. At the least, such cases clutter the records and give an erroneous picture of the real workload confronting the court system.

Is there a civil case backlog in North Carolina's superior courts? The answer to this question necessarily depends upon one's definition of backlog status. Or, stated another way, within what period of time should the superior courts be expected to dispose of any civil case?

There is no official or generally recognized time standard for the disposition of civil cases in the superior courts. The data on ages of pending civil cases (page 16) shows that about 70% of the cases were pending more than six months, and 47% of the cases were pending more than one year, with 20.9% pending more than two years.

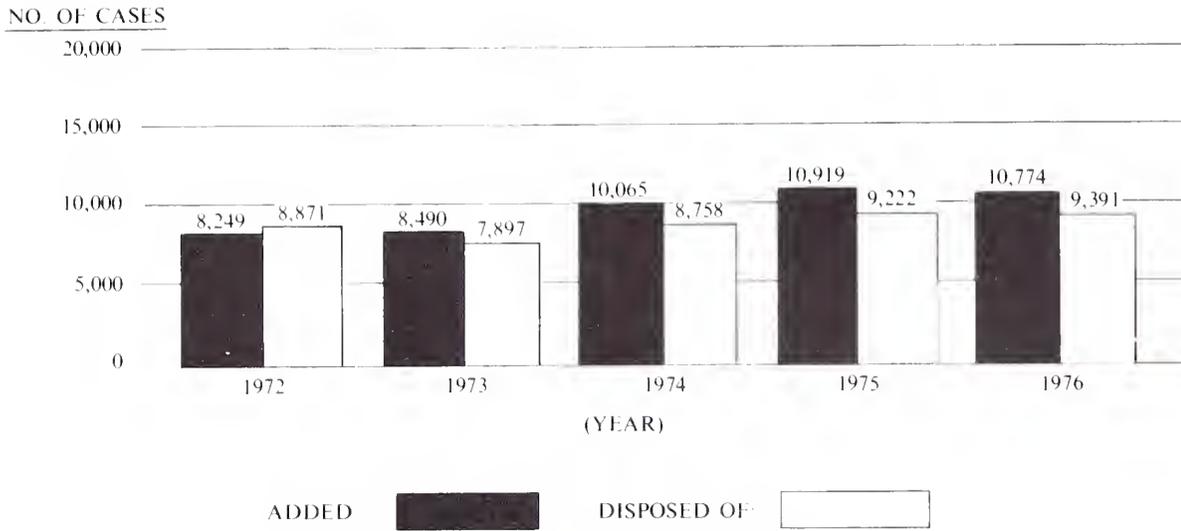

Perhaps, ideally, the superior courts should be able to dispose of any civil case within six months after it is filed. Or, perhaps it would be more realistic and in keeping with the developments in most civil cases to suggest that a civil case — absent unusual circumstances — should be disposed of within a year after the case is filed.

If a one-year standard were applied to our present situation, it is obvious that one would conclude that there is a substantial backlog of civil cases in our superior courts, with 47% of the total number pending for more than one year. Presumably, the most tolerant time standard would place in a backlog status those civil cases pending for more than two years. Applying the two-year time standard puts almost 21% of the total (3,042 cases out of a total of 14,653) in a "backlog" status.

No definitive conclusions are suggested at this time as to what should be an appropriate specific time standard for the disposition of superior court civil cases. Undoubtedly, this is a matter which will receive close attention of court officials, members of the practicing bar, and interested members of the public; and in time a more specific standard will evolve, whether officially mandated or not, which will provide guidance in this area for assessing the court system performance.

SUPERIOR COURT CRIMINAL DOCKETS

In the graphs which follow, criminal case activity in the superior courts during 1976 is compared with criminal case activity during the preceding four years. There was a small decrease in criminal case filings in 1976 — 52,547 as compared with 53,505 in 1975. (This is not viewed as indicative of any long range trend toward decreasing numbers of criminal cases filed in the superior courts. On the contrary, the long range trend is expected to show, as over the past several years, modest annual increases in the numbers of criminal cases filed.) There was also a decrease in the number of criminal case dispositions — 49,398 in 1976 as compared with 52,551 in 1975. The number of criminal cases pending at the end of 1976 was 18,431 as compared with 15,282 pending at the end of 1975, an increase of 20.61%.

Tables are presented which show the distribution of pending criminal cases among the counties, the ten counties with the largest number of criminal cases pending at the end of 1976, and the ten counties with the highest and the ten counties with the lowest ratios of criminal case dispositions to total caseloads.

Data is then shown, by judicial districts and by counties, on: (1) criminal cases pending, filed and disposed of in 1976; (2) ages of felony cases pending in the superior courts as of December 31, 1976; (3) ages of misdemeanor cases pending in the superior courts as of December 31, 1976; and (4) utilization of criminal superior court terms.

It is of interest to note that 23,537 misdemeanor cases tried in the district courts were appealed to the superior courts for trial de novo. This was 6.5% of the total number of criminal cases (361,878) tried in the district courts, excluding those cases disposed of by waiver, preliminary hearing, dismissal or otherwise. A total of 52,547 criminal cases were filed in superior courts. Thus, the 23,537 cases appealed from district courts constituted 44.79% of the total number of criminal cases filed in superior courts during 1976.

Unlike the situation pertaining to civil cases, there is express legislative policy on speedy trials of criminal cases (G.S. 15A-701 et. seq.). The present statutes, enacted in 1973, authorize a judge in his discretion to enter an order directing that a defendant be tried within not less than 30 days if (1) the defendant has been confined for a period greater than 60 days; or (2) the defendant has been confined for at least 30 days and files a petition requesting a prompt trial; or (3) the defendant has been awaiting trial, without confinement, for a period greater than 90 days; or (4) the defendant has been awaiting trial, without confinement, for more than 60 days and files a petition requesting a prompt trial. Under the statutes, the judge is authorized to provide that if the defendant is not brought to trial within the time specified in his order, the defendant must be released on his own recognizance or the charges dismissed.

In summary, the present statutes endorse but do not mandate these time standards: a defendant who is confined is entitled to a trial within 60 to 90 days; and a defendant awaiting trial who is not confined is entitled to a trial within 90 to 120 days. No distinction is made between the trial of a misdemeanor and the trial of a felony, or between cases in the superior courts and those in the district courts.

The statutes on speedy trial of criminal cases were rewritten by the 1977 Session of the General Assembly, with the revision to become effective October 1, 1978. (See Chapter 787, 1977 Session Laws.) A two-stage progression of time standards is spelled out in Chapter 787. The first stage is for the period, October 1, 1978 to October 1, 1980; and the second stage is for the period on and after October 1, 1980.

Beginning October 1, 1978, a criminal case shall be tried within 120 days: after the defendant is arrested, served with criminal process, waives indictment or receives notice of an indictment; after giving notice of appeal in a misdemeanor case for trial de novo in the superior court; after a mistrial has been declared; or after a decision on an appeal ordering a retrial. Certain periods of delay are excluded, such as time required for physical or mental examination of a defendant; other trials involving the defendant; interlocutory appeals; hearings on motions; delay caused by the defendant; delay agreed to by defendant and the prosecutor; or delay by reason of a continuance granted by a trial judge for good cause. If a defendant is not brought to trial within the time limits specified by statute or otherwise prescribed by a trial judge, the charge shall be dismissed on motion of the defendant.

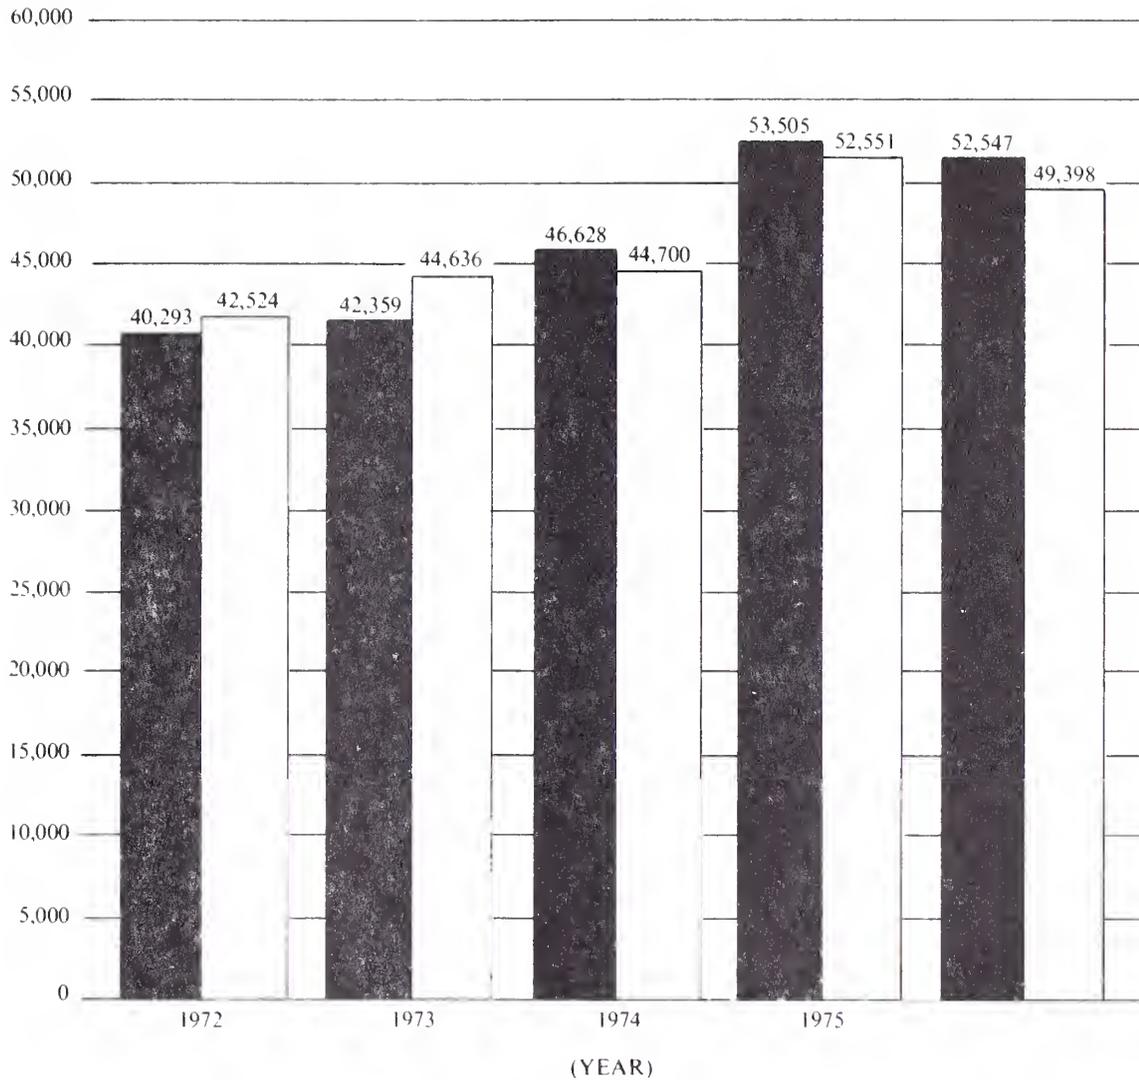

The same general provisions apply on and after October 1, 1980 except that the time periods are reduced from 120 to 90 days and 60 days. The 60-day standard will apply only to a new trial following declaration of a mistrial or a new trial following a decision on appeal which orders a new trial for the defendant.

The tables on ages of criminal cases pending in the superior courts show that as of December 31, 1976, approximately 30% of the misdemeanor cases and approximately 36% of the felony cases had been pending for more than six months, with about 12% of the misdemeanors and 18% of the felonies pending for more than a year. One might speculate that by the time the mandatory standards under Chapter 787, 1977 Session Laws, become effective on October 1, 1978, there will be some significant reduction in the number of criminal cases pending for more than six months.

The District Court Division

“The General Assembly shall, from time to time, divide the State into a convenient number of local court districts and shall prescribe where the District Courts shall sit, but a District Court must sit in at least one place in each county.”

N. C. Const., Art. III, Sec. 10

THE DISTRICT COURT DIVISION

Total case activity in the district courts during 1976, compared with total case activity during the preceding four years, is depicted in the graphs which follow. There was a decrease in total filings — 1,270,000 in 1976 as compared with 1,340,556 in 1975. There was also a decrease in the total number of dispositions, — 1,249,609 in 1976 as compared with 1,322,359 in 1975. The number of cases pending at the end of 1976 was 177,759 as compared with 157,368 at the end of 1975, an increase of 12.96%.

District courts have jurisdiction of proceedings involving juveniles (individuals under 16 years of age). Such proceedings, although often involving allegations of activity of a criminal nature, are not legally regarded or treated as criminal cases. Data on juvenile proceedings is presented in a separate section, following the data on District Court Civil Dockets.

DISTRICT COURT CIVIL DOCKETS

Civil case activity in the district court division during 1976, which includes small claims assigned to magistrates for hearing, is compared with civil case activity during the preceding four years in the graphs which follow. There was some increase in civil case filings in 1976 — 224,810, as compared with 219,428 in 1975. The number of civil cases pending at the end of 1976 was a few hundred less in 1976 than in 1975; and the number of civil cases pending at the end of 1976 was 64,651 compared with 52,049 pending at the end of 1975.

Tables are presented which show the distribution of pending civil cases among the counties, the ten counties with the largest number of cases pending at the end of 1976, and the ten counties with the highest and the ten counties with the lowest ratios of dispositions to total caseloads.

Data is then shown, by judicial districts and by counties, on the number of civil cases pending, filed and disposed of in 1976. Following the county-by-county data, the statewide total figures are listed on (1) ages of civil cases pending before magistrates as of December 31, 1976; (2) ages of civil cases appealed from magistrates and pending in district courts as of December 31, 1976; (3) ages of civil child support cases pending in the district courts as of December 31, 1976; (4) ages of civil domestic relations cases pending in the district courts as of December 31, 1976; and (5) ages of all other civil cases pending in the district courts as of December 31, 1976. (County data tables on ages of all civil cases pending in the county's district courts have been distributed to the clerk of superior court in each county and to the Chief District Judge for each judicial district.)

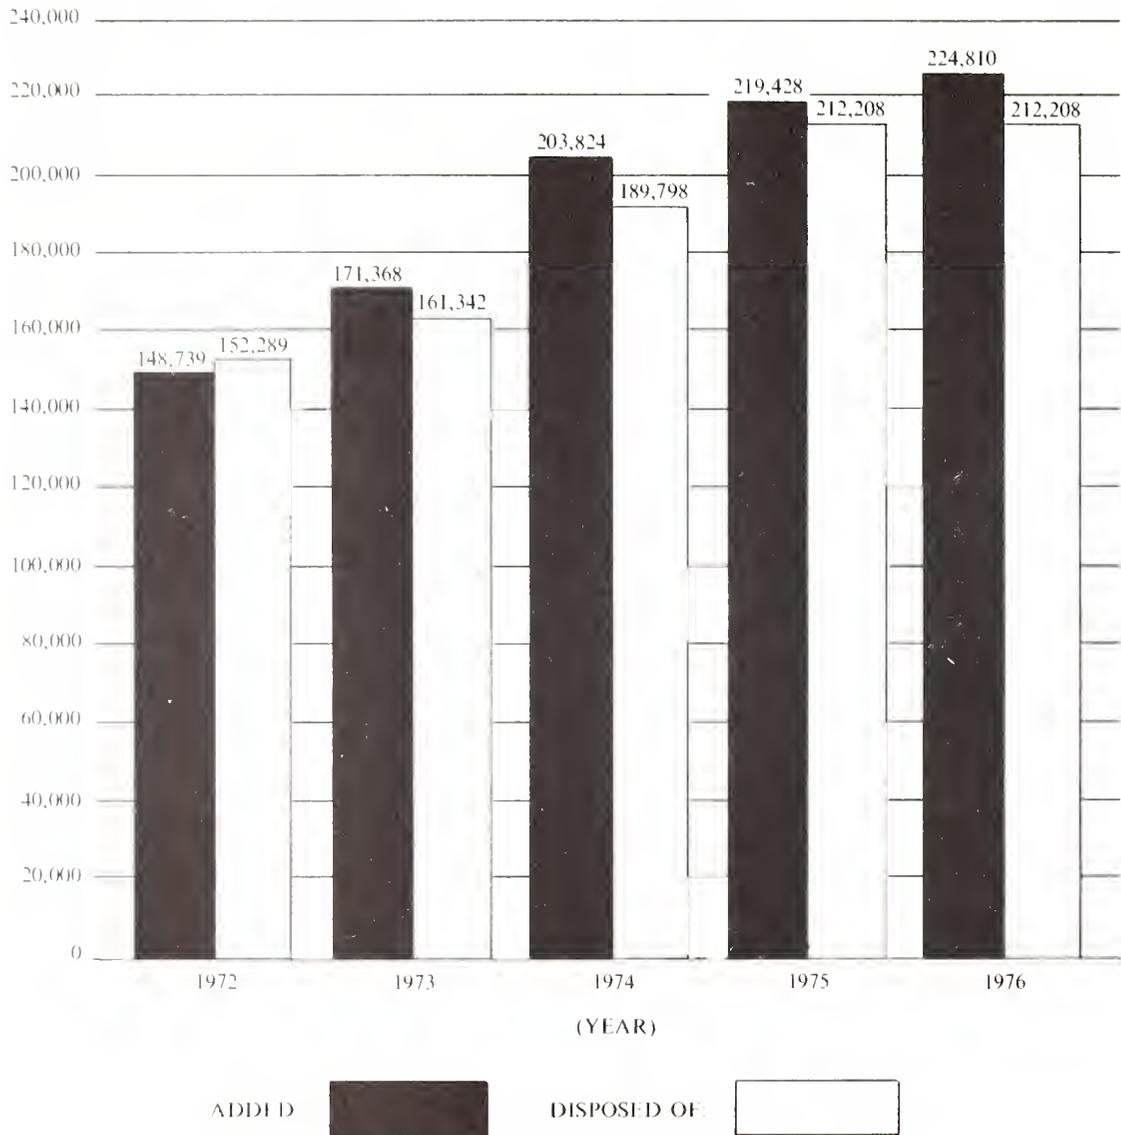

As previously stated in comments on the superior court civil dockets, if the parties involved in a civil case are not interested in having the case tried, it will not likely be placed on the trial calendar. This may explain why the table on ages of civil cases pending in the district court division show that there are a number of cases which have been pending for a period of years.

This is the first year for which the Administrative Office of the Courts has been able to obtain data on ages of pending cases. The publication of such data should assist in directing attention to those cases in which the parties have so little interest that they should no longer be retained as active pending cases but disposed of by dismissal. In any event, it is expected that future annual reports will show a significant reduction in the number of civil cases in the district court division which have been pending for more than two years.

JUVENILE PROCEEDINGS

For purposes of juvenile jurisdiction of the district courts, a juvenile or "child" is defined as being, with two exceptions, one who has not reached his or her eighteenth birthday and "is not married, emancipated, or a member of the armed services of the United States." The exceptions are where the person has committed, or is alleged to have committed, a criminal offense, including violations of the motor vehicle laws; or has violated the conditions, the statutes provide that a juvenile or child is one who has not reached his or her sixteenth birthday.

The following table presents data, by judicial district and by county, on the number of offenses and conditions alleged in juvenile petitions and on the number of children before the courts for the first time. The second table shows, by judicial district and by county, the number of adjudicatory hearings in juvenile proceedings during 1976.

The number of children before juvenile courts for the first time totalled 12,007 in 1976, compared with 13,190 in 1975, a decrease of 8.9%. The number of adjudicatory hearings in 1976 was 22,906, compared with 27,131 in 1975, a decrease of 15.58%.

It appears that these decreases in the number of children before the courts for the first time and in the number of adjudicatory hearings are due in large measure to the State's intake program, which is administered by the Juvenile Services Division. The intake program, which became operational statewide early in 1976, endeavors to resolve undisciplined or delinquent complaints without the necessity of a juvenile court proceeding. A complaint may be resolved by intake counselors, or it may be referred to another community resource, such as a mental health clinic or the local department of social services.

The relative composition of the caseload varies little from the previous year. Of the total number of offenses and conditions alleged, delinquency accounted for 58.2%, undisciplined for 21.2%, dependency for 10.2%, and neglect for 10.4%. The total number of delinquency allegations in 1976 was 13,241, a decrease of 1,911 from the previous year, a 12.6% decrease. Undisciplined allegations decreased from 5,275 in 1975, to 4,825 in 1976. On the other hand, dependency allegations increased from 2,237 in 1975, to 2,333 in 1976; and allegations of neglect increased from 2,136 in 1975 to 2,358 in 1976.

It was not feasible in 1976 to incorporate the reporting of juvenile case data in the revised data reporting system referred to in the Introduction to this year's annual report. For this reason, data on the ages of juvenile petitions pending on December 31, 1976 is not available.

This table indicates the total number of adjudicatory hearings in each category of juvenile jurisdiction during the year. Juvenile petitions may be dismissed either for failure to prove that the child is delinquent, undisciplined, dependent or neglected or, if he is found to be so, because the child is not in need of the care, protection or discipline of the State. All cases dismissed for either of these reasons are counted in the "dismissed" column; all other cases are counted in the "retained" column.

DISTRICT COURT CRIMINAL DOCKETS

In the graphs which follow, criminal case activity in the district court division during 1976 is compared with criminal case activity in district courts during the preceding four years. There was a 6.77% decrease in the number of criminal cases filed — 1,045,190 in 1976 as compared with 1,121,028 in 1975. There was a comparable decrease in the number of criminal case dispositions — 1,037,401 in 1976 as compared with 1,109,759 in 1975. There was some increase in the total number of pending criminal cases at year end, 113,108 as of December 31, 1976 compared with 105,319 as of December 31, 1975.

Tables are presented which show the distribution of pending criminal cases among the counties, the ten counties with the largest number of cases pending at the end of 1976, the ten counties with the highest ratios of dispositions to total caseloads, and the ten counties with the lowest ratios of dispositions to total caseloads.

Data is then shown, by judicial districts and by counties, on: (1) the number of criminal cases pending, filed and disposed of in 1976; (2) ages of criminal cases involving motor vehicle offenses pending on December 31, 1976; and (3) ages of non-motor vehicle criminal cases pending on December 31, 1976.

The decrease in the number of criminal cases filed in the district courts during 1976 as compared with the number in 1975 is not regarded as indicative of any long-range downward trend in case filings. The overall consistent trend of criminal case filings over the years has been upward, and this is expected to continue, in substantial parallel with the expected upward trend in the State's population in the years ahead.

The percentage breakdown for the types of district court criminal cases and the manner of dispositions has remained constant over the years. The pattern was no different in 1976. Of the total number of criminal cases filed in the district courts, 64.95% was for violation of the traffic laws. Non-motor vehicle cases made up the remaining 35.05%.

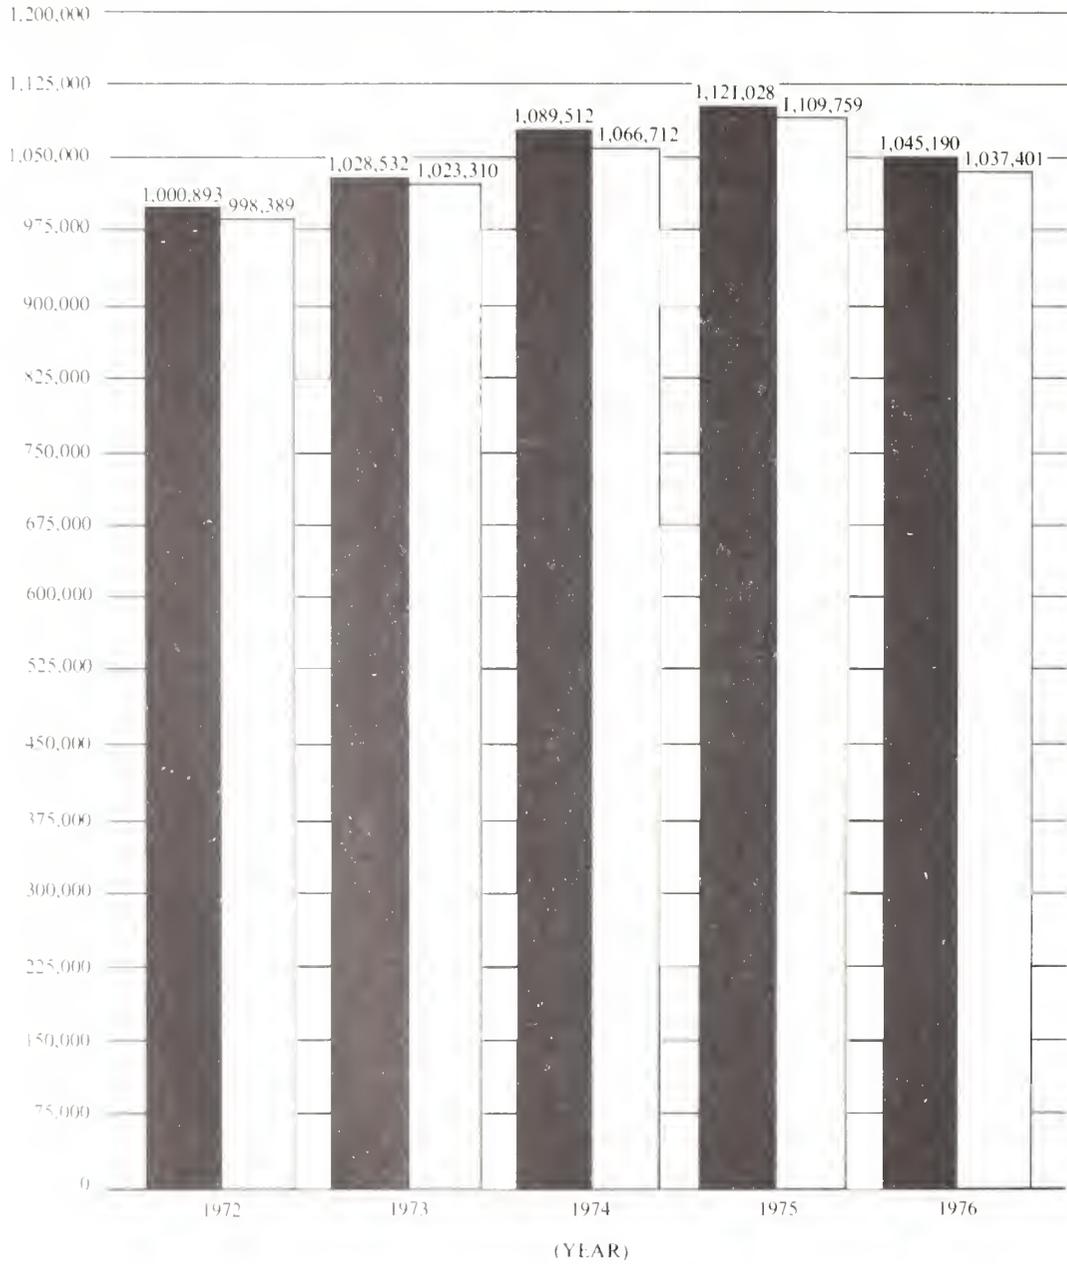

Only 8.89% of the cases disposed of was contested, requiring a trial before a district court judge. About one-fourth (25.99%) of the cases was disposed of upon a plea of guilty or nolo contendere, and 42.85% was disposed of by a waiver of appearance and trial and a written plea of guilty filed with a magistrate or the clerk. Preliminary hearings comprised 2.54% of district court criminal case dispositions, and the remaining 19.70% of the dispositions was by other means, such as dismissal by the district attorney.

The comment on speedy trial standards found in the section on the superior court criminal dockets is also applicable to district court criminal cases. The statutes in question make no distinction between criminal cases filed in the superior courts and those filed in the district courts.

The tables on ages of criminal cases pending in the district courts as of December 31, 1976, show that 18.8% of the motor vehicle cases and 25.1% of the non-motor vehicle cases had been pending more than six months; and 13.0% of the motor vehicle cases and 16.8% of the non-motor vehicle cases had been pending more than a year. One might speculate that by the time the mandatory standards under Chapter 787, 1977 Session Laws, become effective on October 1, 1978, there will be some significant reduction in the number of criminal cases pending for more than six months.

“The General Assembly shall provide for an administrative office of the courts to carry out the provisions of this Article.”

N. C. Constitution, Art. IV, Sec. 15

A HISTORICAL NOTE

From its early colonial period North Carolina's judicial system has been the focus of periodic attention and adjustment. Through the years, there has been a repeated sequence of critical examination, proposals for reform, and finally the enactment of some reform measures.

Colonial Period

Around 1700 the royal governor established a General (or Supreme) Court for the colony and a dispute developed over the appointment of associate justices. The Assembly conceded to the King the right to name the chief justice but unsuccessfully tried to win for itself the power to appoint the associate justices. Other controversies developed concerning the creation and jurisdiction of the courts and the tenure of judges. As for the latter, the Assembly's position was that judge appointments should be for good behavior as against the royal governor's decision for life appointment. State historians have noted that "the Assembly won its fight to establish courts and the judicial structure in the province was grounded on laws enacted by the legislature," which was more familiar with local conditions and needs (Lefler and Newsome, 142). Nevertheless, North Carolina alternated between periods under legislatively enacted reforms (like good behavior tenure and the Court Bill of 1746, which contained the seeds of the post-Revolutionary court system) and periods of stalemate and anarchy after such enactments were nullified by royal authority. A more elaborate system was framed by legislation in 1767 to last five years. It was not renewed because of persisting disagreement between local and royal partisans. As a result, North Carolina was without higher courts until after Independence (Battle, 847).

At the lower-court level during the colonial period, judicial and county government administrative functions were combined in the authority of the justices of the peace, who were appointed by the royal governor.

After the Revolution

When North Carolina became a state in 1776, the colonial structure of the court system was retained largely intact. The Courts of Pleas and Quarter Sessions — the county court which continued in use from about 1670 to 1868 — were still held by the assembled justices of the peace in each county. The justices were appointed by the governor on the recommendation of the General Assembly, and they were paid out of fees charged litigants. On the lowest level of the judicial system, magistrate courts of limited jurisdiction were held by justices of the peace, singly or in pairs, while the county court was out of term.

The new Constitution of 1776 empowered the General Assembly to appoint judges of the Supreme Courts of Law and Equity. A court law enacted a year later authorized three superior court judges and created judicial districts. Sessions were supposed to be held in the court towns of each district twice a year, under a system much like the one that had expired in 1772. Just as there had been little distinction in terminology between General Court and Supreme Court prior to the Revolution, the terms Supreme Court and Superior Court were also interchangeable during the period immediately following the Revolution.

One of the most vexing governmental problems confronting the new State of North Carolina was its judiciary. "From its inception in 1777 the state's judiciary caused complaint and demands for reform." (Lefler and Newsome, 291, 292). Infrequency of sessions, conflicting judge opinions, and insufficient number of judges, and lack of means for appeal were all cited as problems, although the greatest weakness was considered to be the lack of a real Supreme Court.

In 1779, the legislature required the Superior Court judges to meet together in Raleigh as a Court of Conference to resolve cases which were disagreed on in the districts. This court was continued and made permanent by subsequent laws. The justices were required to put their opinions in writing to be delivered orally in court. The Court of Conference was changed in name to the Supreme Court in 1805 and authorized to hear appeals in 1810. Because of the influence of the English legal system, however, there was still no conception of an alternative to judges sitting together to hear appeals from cases which they had themselves heard in the districts in panels of as few as two judges (Battle, 848). In 1818, though, an independent three-judge Supreme Court was created for review of cases decided at the Superior Court level.

Meanwhile, semi-annual superior court sessions in each county were made mandatory in 1806, and the State was divided into six circuits, or ridings, where the six judges were to sit in rotation, two judges constituting a quorum as before.

The County court of justices of the peace continued during this period as the lowest court and as the agency of local government.

After the Civil War

Major changes to modernize the judiciary and make it more democratic were made in 1868. A primary holdover from the English legal arrangement — the distinction between law and equity proceedings — was abolished. The County Court's control of local government was abolished. Capital offenses were limited to murder, arson, burglary and rape, and the Constitution stated that the aim of punishment was "not only to satisfy justice, but also to reform the offender, and thus prevent crime." The membership of the Supreme Court was raised to five, and the selection of the justices (including the designation of the chief justice) and superior court judges (raised in number to 12) was taken from the legislature and given to the voters, although vacancies were to be filled by the governor until the next election. The Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions — the County Court of which three justices of the peace constituted a quorum — was eliminated. Its judicial responsibilities were divided between the Superior Courts and the individual justices of the peace, who were retained as separate judicial officers with limited jurisdiction.

Conservatively oriented amendments to the 1868 Constitution in 1875 reduced the number of Supreme Court justices to three and the Superior Court judges to nine. The General Assembly was given the power to appoint justices of the peace, instead of the governor. Most of the modernizing changes in the post-Civil War Constitution, however, were left, and the judicial structure it had established continued without systematic modification through more than half of the 20th century. (A further constitutional amendment approved by the voters in November, 1888, returned the Supreme Court membership to five, and the number of superior court judges to twelve.)

Before Reorganization

A multitude of legislative enactments to meet rising demands and to respond to changing needs had heavily encumbered the 1868 judicial structure by the time systematic court reforms were proposed in the 1950's. This accrual of piecemeal change and addition to the court system was most evident at the lower, local court level, where hundreds of courts specially created by statute operated with widely dissimilar structure and jurisdiction.

By 1965, when the implementation of the most recent major reforms was begun, the court system in North Carolina consisted of four levels: (a) the Supreme Court, with appellate jurisdiction; (b) the superior court, with general trial jurisdiction; (c) the local statutory courts of limited jurisdiction, and (d) justices of the peace and mayor's courts, with petty jurisdiction.

At the superior court level, the State had been divided into 30 judicial districts and 24 solicitorial districts. The 40 superior court judges (who rotated among the counties) and the district solicitors were paid by the State. The clerk of superior court, who was judge of probate and often also a juvenile judge, was a county official. There were specialized branches of superior court in some counties for matters like domestic relations and juvenile offenses.

The lower two levels were local courts. At the higher of these local court levels were more than 180 recorder-type courts. Among these were the county recorder's courts, municipal recorder's courts and township recorder's courts; the general county courts, county criminal courts and special county courts; the domestic relations courts and the juvenile courts. Some of these had been established individually by special legislative acts more than a half-century earlier. Others had been created by general law across the State since 1919. About half were county courts and half were city or township courts. Jurisdiction included misdemeanors (mostly traffic offenses), preliminary hearings and sometimes civil matters. The judges, who were usually part-time, were variously elected or appointed locally.

At the lowest level were about 90 mayor's courts and some 925 justices of the peace. These officers had similar criminal jurisdiction over minor cases with penalties up to a $50 fine or 30 days in jail. The justices of the peace also had civil jurisdiction of minor cases. These court officials were compensated by the fees they exacted, and they provided their own facilities.

Court Reorganization

The need for a comprehensive evaluation and revision of the court system received the attention and support of Governor Luther H. Hodges in 1957, who encouraged the leadership of the North Carolina Bar Association to pursue the matter. A Court Study Committee was established as an agency of the North Carolina Bar Association, and that Committee issued its report, calling for reorganization, at the end of 1958. A legislative Constitutional Commission, which worked with the Court Study Committee, finished its report early the next year. Both groups called for the structuring of an all-inclusive court system which would be directly state-operated, uniform in its organization throughout the State and centralized in its administration. The plan was for a simplified, streamlined and unified structure. A particularly important part of the proposal was the elimination of the local statutory courts and their replacement by a single District Court; the office of justice of the peace was to be abolished, and the newly fashioned position of magistrate would function within the District Court as a subordinate judicial office.

Constitutional amendments were introduced in the legislature in 1959 but these failed to gain the required three-fifths vote of each house. The proposals were reintroduced and approved at the 1961 session. The Constitutional amendments were approved by popular vote in 1962, and three years later the General Assembly enacted statutes to put the system into effect by stages. By the end of 1970 all of the counties and their courts had been incorporated into the new system, whose unitary nature was symbolized by the name, General Court of Justice. The designation of the entire 20th Century judicial system as a single, statewide "court," with components for various types and levels of caseload, was adapted from North Carolina's earlier General Court, whose full venue extended to all of the 17th Century counties.

After Reorganization

Notwithstanding the comprehensive reorganization adopted in 1962, the impetus for changes has continued. In 1965, the Constitution was amended to provide for the creation of an intermediate Court of Appeals. It was amended again in 1972 to allow for the Supreme Court to censure or remove judges upon the recommendation of a Judicial Standards Commission. As for the selection of judges, persistent efforts have been made in the 1970's to obtain legislative approval of amendments to the State Constitution, to appoint judges according to "merit" instead of electing them by popular, partisan vote. The proposed amendments have received the backing of a majority of the members of each house, but not the three-fifths required to submit constitutional amendments to a vote of the people. It seems likely that this significant issue will be before the General Assembly again for consideration.

THE PRESENT COURT SYSTEM

North Carolina's judicial system is a structure of three tiers known collectively as the General Court of Justice. The three levels correspond to a division of judicial labor within the unified court system to accommodate these essential functions: review of cases (Appellate Division); trial of major cases (Superior Court Division), and trial of the large volume of minor cases (District Court Division).

Appellate Division

Supreme Court. At the apex of this judicial structure is the seven-member Supreme Court, which sits in Raleigh to review procedural questions and interpretations of the law arising from the lower courts. The court's caseload consists of lower court actions involving the death penalty or life imprisonment, substantial constitutional questions, dissent at the Court of Appeals level, utilities rate-making decisions, or the exercise of the Supreme's Court own discretionary review. Supreme Court justices are elected by popular vote for eight-year terms.

Court of Appeals. The nine-judge intermediate Court of Appeals sits in panels of three in Raleigh and hears the great volume of appeals originating in the State court system. Court of Appeals judges, too, are elected for terms of eight years.

Superior Court Division

At least two sessions of superior court must be held annually in each county of the state. In 1976, there were 48 regular and eight special superior court judges. North Carolina carries the rotation of its trial judges to a greater degree than any other state. A regular superior court judge is required to rotate through the judicial districts within his geographic quarter of the state, holding court for at least six months in each district. Thus, he would hold court for only a half-year every five years or so in the district where he has residence. Regular judges are elected for eight-year terms. Special judges are appointed by the governor for four-year terms and may be assigned to hold court in any county in the state.

The superior court is a trial court of general jurisdiction, and is the "proper" court for civil cases involving more than $5,000 in controversy. The criminal jurisdiction of the superior court extends to all felonies and some misdemeanors, including misdemeanor charges that are closely connected with felony charges as well as misdemeanor convictions at the district court level which are appealed for a new trial in superior court.

District Court Division

This level of the trial court in North Carolina has limited jurisdiction, extending to misdemeanors, and is the proper court for civil cases involving $5,000 or less. The major portion of all cases filed in the State's courts is disposed of in the district court division.

District Court Judges. There were 117 district court judges in 1976, elected to four-year terms. District court judges hold court in rotation among the counties in their district. The 30 districts at this level of court correspond to the superior court judicial districts.

For civil cases involving $5,000 or less, the district court is the proper division for trial, which can include a jury. In criminal matters, the district court's jurisdiction extends to all misdemeanors and to preliminary hearings on felony charges; trial of misdemeanors is without a jury. This court division also has jurisdiction of proceedings against juveniles.

Magistrates. There were more than 500 magistrates in 1976. Magistrates are nominated in each county by the clerk of superior court and appointed by the senior resident superior court judge. Magistrates are officers of the district court, paid by the state, and in many cases work part-time. Their civil jurisdiction includes small claims involving $500 or less. In criminal matters, the magistrate tries worthless check cases involving $50 or less, accepts guilty pleas in cases involving no more than a $50 fine or 30-day jail sentence, issues warrants and conducts first appearance hearings.

Other Key Judicial Officials

District Attorneys. The state is divided into prosecutorial districts that correspond with the judicial districts except in the case of the 27th Judicial District, which is divided into prosecutorial District 27A and 27B. A district attorney is elected to a four-year term for each of the 31 districts. The responsibility of the district attorney and his assistants is to represent the state in criminal and certain juvenile matters. The district attorney is responsible for the calendaring of criminal cases.

Public Defenders. By 1976, the public defender system had been established in five judicial districts (12th, 18th, 26th, 27th, and 28th) for the representation of indigent defendants in criminal matters. The assigned private counsel system is used in the other judicial districts. The public defender for the 28th district is appointed by the senior resident superior court judge from recommendations by the district bar. For the other districts, the appointment is by the governor from recommendations of the district bar. Their terms are four years.

Clerks of Superior Court. The clerk of superior court maintains a system of records for both the district and superior courts. Thus, there is one trial court clerk in each county, elected for a four-year term. The clerk is also judge of probate and special proceedings. He is authorized to issue warrants and accept trial waivers in traffic cases.

Juvenile Court Counselors. There are from four to 22 juvenile court counselors in each judicial district of the state. As part of their "intake" responsibilities, the counselors screen complaints regarding children to determine whether petitions should be filed in juvenile court or some other means should be used to solve the problem. The counselors also exercise probation responsibility for juveniles assigned to counseling within the community, and they provide aftercare supervision for children conditionally released from training schools.

Thirty-eight persons from all parts of the judicial system participated in courses of professionally related study outside North Carolina in 1976.

THE NORTH CAROLINA JUDICIAL COUNCIL IN 1976

The Judicial Council was established by statute in 1949. Its work centers on making recommendations to the General Assembly or the courts on changing the law or the structure and operation of the administration of justice in North Carolina. It is charged with making a continuing evaluation of the court system and receiving suggestions or criticism about the administration of justice. In recent years, the studies and recommendations of the Judicial Council have been confined principally to specific changes in criminal law and procedure, especially as suggested or required by court decisions. A few civil matters have also been considered.

Representatives from all levels of court, prosecuting and defense attorneys, and the General Assembly make up the Council, which met four times in 1976. Eight proposed bills were recommended during this year. These proposals would have the effect of:

(1) Setting up sentencing procedures in capital cases, including the imposition of the death penalty, which would meet the requirements set out by the U.S. Supreme Court, although the Council made no recommendation on the actual question of retaining or abolishing the death penalty.

(2) Prohibiting picketing and demonstrations near courthouses.

(3) Expanding the authority of a trial judge to move a civil case, like a criminal case, to another county in the same judicial district or another county in an adjacent district, to ensure a fair trial.

(4) Providing that indigent parties in a proceeding for the termination of parental rights may, in the court's discretion, secure court-appointed and state-paid counsel.

(5) Allowing the superior court judge to dismiss frivolous petitions calling for the removal of district attorneys.

(6) Removing the authority of a judge to order a confiscated weapon turned over to a law enforcement agency for its own use.

(7) Repealing the habitual offender article of the motor vehicle law.

(8) Limiting dissemination of reports filed by medical experts on a defendant's capacity to proceed to trial.

THE JUDICIAL STANDARDS COMMISSION IN 1976

The Judicial Standards Commission was established by the General Assembly pursuant to a constitutional amendment approved by the voters at the general election in November, 1972. The membership consists of a Court of Appeals judge, a superior court judge, and a district court judge, each appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; two members of the State Bar, elected by the State Bar Council; and two citizens who are not judges nor members of the State Bar, appointed by the Governor. The Court of Appeals judge serves as chairman of the Commission.

Upon recommendation of the Commission, the Supreme Court may censure or remove any justice or judge for wilful misconduct in office, wilful and persistent failure to perform his duties, habitual intemperance, conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude, or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute. Upon recommendation of the Commission, the Supreme Court may remove any justice or judge for mental or physical incapacity interfering with the performance of his duties, which is, or is likely to become, permanent.

During 1976, the Judicial Standards Commission met on the following dates. All meetings of the Commission were held in Raleigh.

February 5-6, 1976

April 2, 1976

June 3, 1976

July 29, 1976

August 27, 1976

November 12, 1976

December 16-17, 1976

A complaint or other information against a judge, whether filed with the Commission or by action of the Commission on its own motion, is denominated by the Commission as an "Inquiry Concerning a Judge." There were 61 "Inquiries Concerning a Judge" during 1976 including three inquiries carried over from 1975.

Forty one of these inquiries were determined by the Judicial Standards Commission to involve subject matter not within the jurisdiction of the Commission.

Seven inquiries were determined by the Commission to involve subject matter within the jurisdiction of the Commission, but which did not warrant investigation.

Thirteen inquiries were determined by the Commission to require preliminary investigation. In five inquiries the investigation was completed and the Commission determined that no further action was justified. Investigation was completed in one inquiry but the subject judge accepted a reprimand from the Commission in lieu of a formal hearing on the charges. There were two inquiries in which the investigation was completed and a formal hearing was conducted, and a recommendation of censure was filed with the Supreme Court of North Carolina. Investigation was completed in five inquiries, which await final determination by the Commission.

THE ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE COURTS IN 1976

Statutory Responsibilities of the Office

The statute establishing the Administrative Office of the Courts sets out ten major duties for the director, who is appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. They are the following:

— Determine the state of the dockets and evaluate the practices and procedures of the courts, and make recommendations concerning the number of judges, district attorneys, and magistrates required for the efficient administration of justice.

— Prescribe uniform administrative and business methods, systems, forms and records to be used in the offices of the clerks of superior court.

— Prepare and submit budget estimates of state appropriations necessary for the maintenance and operation of the Judicial Department, and authorize expenditures from funds appropriated for these purposes.

— Investigate, make recommendations concerning, and assist in the securing of adequate physical accommodations for the General Court of Justice.

— Procure, distribute, exchange, transfer, and assign such equipment, books, forms and supplies as are to be acquired with state funds for the General Court of Justice.

— Make recommendations for the improvement of the operations of the Judicial Department.

— Assist the Chief Justice in performing duties relating to the transfer of district court judges for temporary or specialized duty.

— Collect and compile statistical data and other information on the judicial and financial operation of the courts and on the operation of other offices directly related to and serving the courts.

— Prepare and submit an annual report on the work of the Judicial Department to the Chief Justice, and transmit a copy to each member of the General Assembly.

— Perform such additional duties and exercise such additional powers as may be prescribed by statute or assigned by the Chief Justice.

The director is given, by statute, responsibility for the supervision of publicly funded legal defense programs for indigent criminal defendants, and supervision of the juvenile services programs (juvenile probation and aftercare) funded by the State. The assistant director, as administrative assistant to the Chief Justice, aids the Chief Justice in the assignment of superior court judges, preparation of calendars for superior court trial sessions, and on such other duties as are assigned by the Chief Justice.

Reorganization of the AOC Staff

In January of 1976 the Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts consolidated responsibility for the principal functions of the office into five staff divisions. Supervision of each of the five newly consolidated divisions of the Office was vested in a staff officer, who reports to the director.

As reorganized, the divisions of the Administrative Office of the Courts consist of the following:

(1) Fiscal Management Division, with the controller assuming responsibility for purchasing, including the warehousing and printing operations, in addition to the fiscal duties.

(2) Juvenile Services Division, whose responsibility for the administration of juvenile counseling services throughout the state was not changed.

(3) Office of Counsel, with the additional responsibility of supervising services to the clerks of superior court.

(4) Personnel Division, whose responsibilities were unchanged.

(5) Research and Planning Division, which was assigned responsibility for information systems development, Judicial Department education coordination, and federal grants (LEAA) administration in addition to the previous planning function.

Fiscal Management Division The management and supervision of fiscal affairs for the Judicial Department is the responsibility of this division. The fiscal function extends to budgeting, disbursing including payrolls, receiving funds, reporting, accounting, auditing, purchasing, printing, warehousing and supply.

One of the major tasks is to prepare the budget requests and to administer the expenditures and provide accountability for the State appropriations which were approximately 43 million dollars in 1975-76. During the period of February 26 through June 30, 1976, the Governor implemented "spending limitations" for all State departments and agencies due to a decline in general fund revenue. The Department met its stated reduction in expenditures by developing adjustments in certain areas and focusing its attention on priorities.

In response to statutory requirements and authority, this division establishes the procedures and regulations for the collection, deposit, accountability and reporting of all funds belonging to the State of North Carolina that come into the Judicial Department. Revenue in excess of 16 million dollars was deposited in the general fund for 1975-76. In addition it prescribes the policies, rules and regulations for the collection, deposit, accountability and disbursement of all other funds that come into the court system. It supervises, assists and monitors the operations. A uniform accounting system is provided in the office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each of the 100 counties of the State. The Clerks administer these funds within the prescribed policies and regulations.

This division is responsible for the printing of all forms utilized in the court system and the distribution thereof throughout the State. Within its approval authority it procures equipment and supplies for all personnel and provides for all other necessary operational items and services. An inventory of supplies and forms are warehoused to meet the needs on a timely and efficient basis.

Juvenile Services Division. This division administers the statewide juvenile court counselor program for children alleged, and those adjudicated, to be delinquent or undisciplined. Services include intake (pre-hearing studies of children alleged to be delinquent or undisciplined), probation (supervision within the community for adjudicated children who have not been committed to training school), and aftercare (supervision within the community for children conditionally released from the training schools). Among the major accomplishments of the Juvenile Services Division in 1976 was the establishment of uniform personnel evaluation procedures, a statewide training program for all division personnel, and extension of the intake program to all judicial districts in the state.

Office of Counsel. In addition to providing legal advisory service to administrative personnel in the Judicial Department, a principal duty of this division is to aid in translating new legislation into appropriate record-keeping procedures and printed forms for the clerks of superior court and for other Judicial Department officials. The administrator for clerks' services and his field staff are in this division. They monitor record-keeping procedures in the clerks' offices located in the 100 counties, develop recommendations for improved clerk office management, and provide special assistance where that is required from time to time. The administrator for clerks' services also reviews issues of staffing adequacy in the clerks' offices and provides recommendations to the Personnel Division. A major accomplishment in 1976 was the implementation of new procedures for the clerks' offices for keeping records pertaining to child support cases.

Personnel Division. This division provides the personnel administration and analysis of staffing requirements for the Judicial Department, which has approximately 3,000 employees across the state. In 1976, studies of the offices of the Supreme Court Clerk, the Court of Appeals Clerk and 22 clerks of superior court were made, to assure that all personnel positions were properly classified. In addition, some preliminary staff work was done to proceed with similar studies of the clerk offices in 34 additional counties, which are to be conducted during the coming year.

Research and Planning Division. This division is organized around four major functions: judicial planning, information systems development, coordination of judicial department education activity, and LEAA grants administration. In the planning section, a series of reports was produced showing the ratios of superior and district court judges, district attorney staffs, clerk of superior court staffs, and magistrates to population and caseload in all of the counties and judicial districts. A statewide study of county courthouses was designed and implementation of the study project got underway under contract with the School of Design, North Carolina State University. An analysis and report on present and future facilities needs in Raleigh for the Appellate Division was completed. In the information systems section, a revised case data reporting system was designed and implemented, to improve the quality, timeliness and detail of case statistical information at the trial court levels. Significant among the benefits of this revised system, under which the clerks report the case number and date of each case filed and disposed of, is information on the ages of pending cases. A new juvenile services data reporting system on intake and aftercare services was also developed in 1976. In other significant activity, the Administrative Office of the Courts joined with other State criminal justice agencies in a contract funded under the LEAA program, to obtain consultant assistance in the design of a statewide automated criminal justice information system. As part of its responsibility for judicial department education activity in 1976, the Research and Planning Division completed a report reviewing past education and training activities conducted for court-related personnel and including recommendations for an ongoing program of educational activity for Judicial Department personnel. The LEAA grants management section completed applications for 21 projects to be funded under the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration program. Of these, 18 project applications were approved, for a total of $1,703,982 in grants. Among projects thus funded during the year were the county courthouse facilities study, continuation of planning and design of a court information system, and continuance of the juvenile intake program.

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATION FROM THE GENERAL FUND

(For Fiscal Year, July 1, 1975-June 30, 1976)

Appropriations from the State's General Fund for operating expenses for all departments and agencies of state government, including the Judicial Department, totalled $1,756,230,449 for the 1975-76 fiscal year. (Appropriations from the Highway Fund and appropriations from the General Fund for capital improvements are not included in this total.)

The appropriation from the General Fund for operating expenses of the Judicial Department for fiscal year 1975-76 was $42,914,418, or 2.4% of the total General Fund appropriations for operating expenses of all state departments and agencies.

EXPENDITURES FOR REPRESENTATION OF INDIGENTS

(For Fiscal Year, July 1, 1975 - June 30, 1976)

The State furnishes legal counsel for indigent persons in a variety of actions and proceedings, as provided in G.S. 7A-450 et. seq. These include indigent defendants in criminal proceedings, indigents in judicial hospitalization proceedings, juveniles in proceedings that may result in commitment to an institution or transfer to superior court for trial on a felony, and certain other proceedings involving the mentally ill or mentally retarded. Representation of indigents may be by assignment of private counsel or by assignment of public counsel or a public defender.

Five of North Carolina's judicial districts have an office of public defender to represent indigents in criminal cases. These are the 12th, 18th, 26th, 27th, and 28th districts. The other 25 districts utilize only assignment of private counsel.

The cost of the entire program of indigent representation dropped from $5,029,018.62 in the 1974-75 fiscal year, to $4,844,745.89 in the 1975-76 fiscal year, a decrease of 3.7%. The total amount expended for representation of indigents was 11.8% of total Judicial Department expenditures in 1975-76. These costs are summarized below:

Assigned counsel in criminal cases	$3,351,550.09
Assigned counsel in commitment cases	293,855.79
Assigned counsel in juvenile cases	141,367.15
Total		$3,786,773.03
Special counsel, mental hospitals		99,661.78
Public Defender's Office
12th Judicial District	$152,897.20
18th Judicial District	220,754.59
26th Judicial District	155,574.71
27th Judicial District	101,902.26
28th Judicial District	110,336.15
Total		$741,464.91
Transcripts, records and briefs		215,471.17
Expert witness fees		1,375.00
Grand Total		$4,844,745.89

Payments for assigned counsel in criminal cases accounted for 88.5% of total expenditures for assigned counsel, commitment case payments accounted for 3.7%, and juvenile case payments for 7.8%

Assignment of private counsel is also utilized in those districts which have an office of public defender. The total cost of providing counsel to indigents in criminal cases in those districts is summarized as follows:

	12th District	18th District	26th District	27th District	28th District
Public Defender	$152,897	$220,755	$155,575	$101,902	$110,336
Assigned Counsel	64,948	37,365	280,774	98,186	11,784

When private counsel or the public defender is assigned to represent an indigent in a criminal case, the trial court sets the money value of services rendered and enters judgment against the defendant for such amount. Receipts from payments on these judgments rose from $154,614.60 in 1974-75 to $183,805.02 in 1975-76.

The following table compares the number of assigned counsel cases and expenditures in each county for 1974-75 and 1975-76. The total number of cases dropped from 32,423 in 1974-75 to 30,234 in 1975-76, a decrease of 6.7%; and total expenditures dropped from $4,281,625 in 1974-75 to $3,786,773 in 1975-76, a decrease of 11.6%.
